News Notes Taken From Other Papers

News from Entire County in Condensed Form

The village of Fox Lake obtained a temporary injunction against Geo. W. Hollister, stopping him from excavating a bridge across Main street, that village. He claims the property belongs to him and that the improvement would not deprive the public from the use of the right of way.

Busses operated by the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee Railway are now being run between Waukegan and Volo.

Charging that William F. Farris, has disappeared from Prairie View, a score of voters in Vernon township presented to the board of supervisors a petition asking that Geo. Alfred Stancil be appointed to fill the remainder of Farris' term.

Supervisor A. G. Mather of Prairie View explained that Farris got into trouble with the government and that there are rumors to the effect that he is in Fort Leavenworth. Reports received in Waukegan some time ago were that he was charged with transporting stolen automobiles between Illinois and Ohio. He was arrested in the Buckeye state on that charge.

As the question arose as to whether the county board can appoint Stancil until it is known for certain whether he still is a resident of the township, the board referred the matter to the judiciary committee to investigate and report back.

After a layoff of more than three months milk deliveries started in Richmond last week with the opening of the local receiving plant by the Midwest Dairy Company, successor to the Milk Producers Marketing Co., who announced that the opening there is to be a trial to ascertain whether or not a sufficient amount of milk can be obtained to warrant the company making the plant a permanent receiving station.

Due to the activities of Midwest officials there the past two weeks nine dairymen have signed contracts with the company. This is not a sufficient number to warrant the opening of the plant there, but it is in the hope that others will join. The plan is to receive all milk delivered there and make delivery by truck to Burlington until July 1. It is understood that the prices to be paid will be the same as prices paid for milk at evaporating plants during this period, until July 1. Then if the amount of milk received here warrants, car shipments will be made to Chicago, and fluid milk prices will be paid.

Supervisor Ray Paddock, of Wauconda, reported to the county board that the state highway officials want action so that they can take over Rand road, from Wauconda, through Lake Zurich, to the south county line.

He declared that the paving on these two sections has been completed for a year but that the state has been unable to accept the road for paving. The property owners would not move their fences back as required. Because the road has not been accepted by the state it has not received state supervision and in many places deep ruts exist at the edges of the paving.

The board voted to have the road and bridge committee, Charles E. Russell, county superintendent of highways and States Attorney A. V. Smith go into the matter. If the property owners fail to act upon the request of the committee and the county superintendent the states attorney will be authorized to start compulsory action.

The rate of tuition for all non-resident pupils of the Waukegan grade schools has been increased to $5 a month per pupil. This action was taken by the board of education of the city schools at a meeting held last week.

The amount paid during the last five years has varied from forty cents per week for primary grade pupils to $1 per week for grammar grade pupils. It has been found that this did not begin to cover the per capita cost per pupil for educational purposes and therefore it has been decided to make a flat rate of $5 per month per pupil.

20 Years Ago in Antioch

Thursday, June 16, 1904

Chas Webb was transacting business in Chicago Tuesday.

George Olcott is having a new cement walk laid in front of his home.

T. A. Somerville has moved his bakery to one of the stores in the Sibley building.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Radtke and children spent Sunday with relatives at Springfield, Wis.

If we could only have some of the surplus rain that has fallen in Kansas for the past two weeks it would make our farmers smile.

Will Hanneuman has moved into his new shop in the basement of the Sibley building and is now prepared to offer his customers a first class shave in a first class shop.

On Wednesday of this week two more rural routes were started from Antioch. Route No. 1 will be known as the Grass Lake route and will extend to Grass Lake and south to the Columbia Club on Fox Lake. Route No. 2 will extend south to Millbarn, east to Hickory and north to Pikeville. Route No. 3 will extend west to English Prairie, north to Wilmet and back to Antioch.

Fox Lake to Get Refund of Antioch Road

The powers that he finally have succeeded in appropriating the refund that was due to Antioch. The fund appropriated for the Lake Villa-Antioch road amounting to $65,000 was refunded to the county when the state took over that road. Attempts have been made before to "grab" this money. But it was not until last week that they succeeded when Supervisor William J. Stratton introduced a resolution asking for the paying of more than a mile of road extending from the present pavement to the railroad tracks at Fox Lake, an improvement which has been badly needed for a long time, and the board voted in favor of the project.

The road is to be paved with funds available from the balance of the refund on the Lake Villa-Antioch road.

The authorization of this improvement by the board will enable the road and bridge committee and the county superintendent of highways get out plans and specifications and call for bids in the near future.

The board authorized the maintenance committee to hire a man and team to maintain the road between Volo and Fox Lake at a salary of $165 a month. The maintenance work on that road would be done while the Antioch-Fox Lake road was under repair. When the latter highway is completed, the actual improvement of the Volo-Fox Lake road will be taken up.

86-year-old Woman Joins O. E. S. Lodge

At the regular meeting of Antioch Chapter No. 423, O. E. S., held June 12, Mrs. Hannah Casper was initiated into the order. Mrs. Casper is the oldest member ever taken into the Antioch chapter, having celebrated her 86 birthday. She was presented with a beautiful Star pin with a diamond, a gift from her son. Miss Elizabeth Webb made the presentation speech.

The guests of the evening were, Sister Ella Schroeder, past grand wife of New Jersey, and Representative of N. Carolina and New Jersey; Sister Cross, past matron, Union Park chapter, and sister Leverenz, past matron Oriental chapter. Francis Danby, Minnie Harden and Ruth Chinn, pupils of Miss Mildred Volgel presented flowers to our visitors, Worthy Matron and candidate, after which the children gave a group dance, "The Pipes of Pan", which was greatly enjoyed by all. Our sister Addie Williams rendered a vocal solo, accompanied by Miss Harriet Davis, and Brother Blunt gave a recitation which were also enjoyed. Our past matron and marshall Mrs. Eva Kaye and Mrs. Davis, having birthdays this month, were each presented with cake and gift from the officers of 1924. Delicious refreshments were served by the refreshment committee. All present reported a pleasant evening.

Boys' and Girls' Club Begin Work

Junior Farmers Organize With Purpose of Better Farm Conditions

At a recent meeting of the sewing club, two groups, the Rippling Stitches and Twelve Busy Needles were organized. Miss Daddo Tiffany informs us that the girls are taking a great interest in their work.

An exhibit of their work will be shown at the Libertyville Fair and at the school fair at Antioch next fall. The girls meet every Thursday afternoon at 1:30 at the Antioch Township high school.

A list of the active members with officers appear as follows: The Rippling Stitches—President, Mary Herman; Vice President, Pauline Pullen; Secretary and Treasurer, Ruth Minto, Shirley Hollenbeck, Emily Wilton, Hazel Anderson, Helen Woolner, Lois Hunter, Genevieve Sanborn, Lillian Wells, Ruth McCorkle, Myrtle Nelson Helen Martin.

The Twelve Busy Needles—President, Edna Verrier; Vice President, Louise Simmons; Secretary and Treasurer, Jean Abt; Francis Griffin, Virginia Hackmeister, Roberta Lewis Hazel Norman, Esther Stearns, Elsie Cox, Dorothy Sullivan, Martha Westlake, Katherine Mialo.

Mrs. Sherwood and Miss Margaret Drom have been chosen as Miss Tiffany's assistants.

Any of the girls who have not attended the first meeting should feel free to attend and join the club any Thursday afternoon.

BOYS WORKING

The boys under C. L. Kull, who is also the County Leader, met on last Friday night and organized under the name of The Antioch Junior Farmers with Albert Herman as their president; Lewis Barthel as vice president and Richard Kennedy as the secretary and treasurer. The boys' interest lies along the lines of calf, pig, poultry and corn growing. An exhibit of their work will also be made at the County Fair this fall. Several of the boys have invested heavily in pure bred stock. Let's have the support of the community back of them so they may succeed in their work. These young people are learning the first principles of farming and home making together with good citizenship. They are on the right track toward the building up of a better agriculture in Antioch township with fine farms and well kept homes.

New Pavilion to Open On Saturday Evening

Saturday evening the new Channel Lake Pavilion will open its doors for the opening night. This pavilion is said to be one of the biggest dance halls in the state, and will undoubtedly prove a big attraction to the lake regions.

While Mr. Winch will be in charge of the entire pavilion, E. J. Gilmartin, whose experience in handling large dance halls extends over a period of a number of years, will have charge of the dance floor. Mr. Gilmartin for the last two years has been in charge of the Arcadia in Chicago.

The new dance hall will have a dancing space of 6,000 feet and the entire floor space of the pavilion is 27,000 feet. Mr. Winch has had a powerful searchlight installed on the roof of the pavilion with which he intends to "guide the way" to the pavilion.

MRS. GEO. SELBY PASSES AWAY AT SILVERLAKE

Mrs. George Selby passed away at her home at Silverlake on Saturday evening after an illness of several weeks.

Ann Runyard was born in England, on March 23, 1848, and came to this country with her parents at the age of 9 years. She was united in marriage to George Selby Jan. 3, 1872, to this union five children were born: Mary who died in infancy, Charles of Salem, Mrs. C. Schulz of Bristol, Mrs. William Keulman of Antioch, Mrs. F. Finch of Silverlake who with a husband and four brothers are left to mourn her loss.

The funeral services were held at the Wilmet Methodist church Tuesday afternoon with Rev. S. E. Pollock of Antioch officiating. Burial was in the Wilmet cemetery.

N. S. VAN HORN HELD AT COUNTY JAIL

N. S. VanHorn, who came to Antioch more than two weeks ago with the wife and two children of Oscar Stewart of Watervliet, Mich., was taken into custody last Saturday here on a slight charge but it is thought that a more serious act of violation of the Mann Act will be lodged against him.

At the time all attempts to locate Mrs. Stewart and the children were futile. Van Horn refused to divulge her whereabouts. Stewart with his brother, was here to assist in the search for his wife and children.

Van Horn was taken to Waukegan and placed in the County jail and further attempts to learn the information from him as to where Mrs. Stewart could be located were of no avail.

Monday evening Mrs. Stewart with her two children arrived in Antioch from the north on the 7:12 train and she was immediately detained. Word was sent to Waukegan and Deputy Sheriff Wied and his wife came from Waukegan and took her to the County jail.

Stewart has started divorce proceedings against his wife and seeks custody of the two children.

PLAY BARRINGTON TEAM SUNDAY

The baseball team certainly has hard luck when it comes to being able to put on a game. So far they have not had a decent Sunday. But nevertheless that has not discouraged the manager, Herb Vos. He has signed up the strong Barrington, Ill., team for next Sunday at Antioch.

All indications are that Bob Wilton will start in the box with Captain "Red" Fields on the receiving line. With any kind of an even break, this management is confident that the aggregation that is to represent Antioch this year will make a first-class showing.

The local team this year are working on non-payment plan, remuneration coming from money taken in at the gate and divided among the players after all expenses are paid. Support from fans will be greatly appreciated.

THREE LOCAL LADS RECEIVE RIBBONS

As a result of the Sectional Livestock Judging contest recently held at Woodstock at which 80 high school students competed, three local high school boys received ribbons as a merit badge for the work they did in their respective classes, Lewis Barthel, a Sophomore in the Agricultural department of the local school received second honors in the hog judging contest. Richard Kennedy and Elmer Barthel were tied for the second honors in Dairy Cattle judging, both receiving a ribbon of their own. The last two boys are Freshmen in the agriculture department. Elmer is a brother of Lewis Barthel.

The two boys have exhibited much interest in their work. Richard Kennedy is also the official grain judge at the local school. The above boys together with Albert Hermann, Martin Sorenson, Philip Simpson, Robert Runyard and Leslie Palmer are leaving for the State Judging contest at Urbana Saturday. C. L. Kull their coach will accompany them. The 200 mile trip will be made by cars.

GRASS LAKE IS CENTER OF A SUIT

The legal fight involving land near Grass Lake, worth about $500,000 was taken under consideration by Judge Earl Reynolds of Rockford Saturday after arguments had been made by Attorney Albert Hall, representing state's attorney, and Attorney E. V. Orvis, representing Rose Gerbracht and Frank Hatch who claim title to about 2,150 acres. A decision is expected by the end of the week.

HANDLES DUTIES OF CORONER; AS HE MAKES OCEAN TRIP

Dr. Maurice D. Penney, of Libertyville, who is associated with Dr. John L. Taylor, announced that during the absence of Coroner Taylor, who left Saturday for Europe on a three months' honeymoon, Edward Conrad, deputy coroner for 18 years will handle the duties of the coroner's office.

Around Our Town

The petition to the postoffice department asking the placing of a closed pouch on No. 8, giving Antioch a little better mail service is at the postoffice. If you have not signed it do so at once.

What some of the old timers think they're going to do on Thursday night. But we hate to tell you what they do do. Anyway, be up at the ball park at five (5:00) p. m. sharp on Thursday.

"Doc" Brown again comes to the front the past week. "The World's Greatest" had him locked up as one of the participants of the Roadout affair. "Doc" says they sure pull some good ones. Incidentally the Chicago papers have to be sidetracked with that single-track idea that all crooks making north locale in Antioch.

Saturday started out to be a hum-dinger of a week and then—You read in "Twenty years ago" about the farmers of this section wishing they could get some of the rain that fell in Kansas.

Silent Cal Coolidge and H—and Maria Dawes should make a good combination. They claim Coolidge is a Wall Street, but those who know Coolidge will tell you that he has no more use for Wall Street than the rest of the country has, and knows that it is an institution that this country can not very well get along without or this country would have dispensed with its services years ago.

Dawes is strictly a business man, one who is absolutely out of patience with red tape and inefficiency. And with his ability to say and do what he means, it looks as if Coolidge with his ability to wear his own shoes will have a man to help him carry out his ideas for an economical and efficient government.

There was one steady stream of cars going south on Route 21 Sunday night. Looks as if this is going to be a popular route before the season is over. If we don't have any more of the Leon Lake conditions to stand.

He who has merchandise to sell And goes and whispers in a well Will not have as many dollars As the man who climbs a tree and hollers.—J. Wilson McGee.

A. B. C. meeting Monday night at the Woodman hall.

The village board is to fix up all of the streets in the village. Work was done on Depot street Tuesday. Still the roads out to the lakes are in pretty poor shape.

First Drowning of Season at Fox River

Chicago Man Loses His Life While Swimming Sunday

While half a dozen friends looked on helplessly, Ole Thomsen, 42 years old was drowned in Fox river, west of Antioch, early Sunday morning. This was the first drowning of the season in Lake country.

Thomsen, an automobile accessories dealer at 3913 Lawrence avenue Chicago, had planned the week end outing for a week and had gone to the cottage of Otto Kramp, located at Fox River springs at a point where Richmond road crosses the river. He and Kramp and several other Chicago friends, including George Mueller, 4812 North Springfield ave., Chicago, had gone to the cottage Saturday afternoon.

About 8 o'clock Sunday morning Thomsen asked Mrs. Kramp for a bathing suit. After putting it on, he went to the pier and took a plunge into the river. It is believed he either struck the water too flatly, stunning him, or else he was seized with cramps. When he came up he was seen to be kicking helplessly, and the half dozen onlookers jumped into boats and went to rescue him. He went down for the last time, however, before they reached the spot. Grappling hooks were rushed to the scene and Dr. Beebe of Antioch was called. The body was recovered in ten minutes and friends worked over it until the arrival of the doctor and a lung-motor. Efforts to resuscitate him proved futile, however.

Deputy Coroner Edward Conrad held the inquest at the Kramp cottage Sunday afternoon, after which the body was taken to Strang's morgue, Antioch, and later to Chicago.

Thomsen leaves a wife and three children, who reside at 4011 West Argyle street, Chicago.

$35,000 Jewelry Robbery Near Highland Park

Close upon the heels of the sensational million dollar train robbery at Rondout Thursday night, came another daring holdup Monday noon between Lake Forest and Highlandwood, when A. Zussman, of Chicago, a salesman for the Central Jewelry Company of that city, was snatched and robbed of $35,000 worth of jewelry. The robbers drove away in a big black Hudson car and headed toward Antioch.

The salesman had been forced to stop on the side of the road between Lake Forest and Highlandwood in order to fix a tire. The Hudson drove up beside him as he was working on the wheel and the men inside asked him if he needed any help.

"No," the man answered. "All I have to do is repair a tire and I'll be done in a few minutes."

Then the three visitors got out of their machine and stepped close to him.

"What have you got in that machine?" asked one.

"Oh, nothing. I'm just peddling some stuff around," the victim replied.

Suddenly one of the trio shoved a gun into the salesman's stomach, while another hit him over the head with a jack handle. The third reached into the automobile and jerked out the case which contained the jewelry. In a few seconds the robbery was over and the robbers leaped into their machine and drove off at full speed. About $35,000 worth of jewels were in the grip.

The Hudson headed toward Antioch and was seen by several witnesses. It was reported to the sheriff's office that the three men had calmly stopped at the Smith stand at the intersection of Rockland road and Grand avenue and had had a bite to eat. Then they asked the owner the best route to Antioch.

Sheriff Ahlstrom and his deputies scoured the roads in the vicinity of Antioch Monday afternoon and expected to get the men into custody in a few hours. Detectives Tiffany and Weale were on the look out about Antioch, while other officers were patrolling the nearby highways.

Two of the robbers wore straw hats while the third had a cap. One of the fellows in the straw headpiece wore a brown suit and the other a dark one. The man in a cap wore a gray suit. All of the robbers spoke broken English and seemed to be of Polish nationality.

Zen of the Y.D.

A NOVEL OF THE FOOTHILLS

by Robert Stead

AUTHOR OF "THE COW PUNCHER," "THE HOMESTEADERS," "NEIGHBORS," ETC.

COPYRIGHT BY ROBERT STEAD

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Transley's hay-cutting outfit, after stacking 2,000 tons, is on its way to the big Y.D. ranch headquarters. Transley is a master of men and circumstances. Linder, foreman, is substantial, but not self-assertive. George Drak, one of the men, is an irresponsible chap who proposes to every woman he meets. Transley and Linder dine with Y.D. and his wife and daughter. Zen, Transley's son, resolves to marry Zen. Y.D. instructs Transley to cut the South Y.D. "spile" and "high water" and a fellow named Landson.

CHAPTER II.—Drak proposes to Zen and is neatly rebuffed. Transley pitches camp on the South Y.D. and lands Landson's outfit cutting hay. Denison Grant, Landson's manager, notices Transley that he is working under a lease from the legal owners and warns Transley off. All of which means war.

CHAPTER III.—Y.D. and Zen ride to the South Y.D. Zen is a natural vanguard, not yet half-broke and ripe for matting. Y.D. has taken a liking to Transley. Zen holds Transley off and encourages Linder.

CHAPTER IV.—Zen enjoys the prospect of a race between Transley and Linder for her favor, but secretly laughs at both. She has another and more serious encounter with Drak. Y.D. moving machines are ruined by Transley. Zen, in the grass, prevents open war with Landson. Transley half-way proposes and is turned off. Drak resolves to burn out the rival outfit.

CHAPTER V.—Fire blazes up in the Landson stacks. The Y.D. outfit hustles to aid the enemy. Zen rides off alone to help. The wind changes and the Y.D. people now have to fight the prairie fire. Zen rides into the river to escape flames. Drak tries to abduct her. She drowns him—or thinks she has. Grant overtakes her. In trying to ride through fire Zen is thrown and knocked senseless.

CHAPTER VI.—Zen comes to after several hours of unconsciousness to find herself in the dark with Grant. She has a sprained ankle and both horses have run away. So she and Grant sit on a rock and tell their past lives. Grant, it appears, is a rich man's son who spends his life in order to live his own life.

CHAPTER VII.—Y.D. and his men arrive after daylight. Naturally, in the circumstances, having been abandoned, Grant rides off. Transley goes to the nearest town, then returns and induces Y.D. to go into partnership with him in the contracting and building business. Transley awakes Zen off her feet by the force of his masculine love-making.

CHAPTER VIII

Zen thought over the events of that evening until they became a blur in her memory. Her principal recollection was that she had been quite swept off her feet. Transley had interpreted her submission as assent, and she had not corrected him in the vital moment when they stood before her father that night in the deep shadow of the veranda.

"Y.D.," Transley had said, "your consent and your blessing! Zen and I are to be married as soon as she can be ready."

That was the moment at which she should have spoken, but she did not. She, who had prided herself that she would make a race of it—she, who had always been able to slip out of a predicament in the nick of time—stood mutely by and let Transley and her father interpret her silence as consent. She was not sure that she was sorry; she was not sure but she would have consented anyway; but Transley had taken the matter quite out of her hands. And yet she could not bring herself to feel resentment toward him; that was the strangest part of it. It seemed that she had come under his domination; that she even had to think as he would have her think.

In the darkness she could not see her father's face, for which she was sorry; and he could not see hers, for which she was glad. There was a long moment of tense silence before she heard him say:

"Well, well! I had a hunch it might come to that, but I didn't reckon you youngsters would work so fast."

"This was a stake worth working fast for," Transley was saying, as he shook Y.D.'s hand. "I wouldn't trade places with any man alive." And Zen was sure he meant exactly what he said.

"She's a good girl, Transley," her father commented; "a good girl, even if a bit obstreperous at times. She's got spirit, Transley, and you'll have to handle her with sense. She's a—n thoroughbred!"

Y.D. had reached his arms toward his daughter, and at these words he closed them about her. Zen had never known her father to be emotional; she had known him to face matters of life and death without the quiver of an eyelid, but as he held her there in his arms that night she felt his big frame tremble. Suddenly she had a powerful desire to cry. She broke from his embrace and ran upstairs to her room.

When she came down her father and mother and Transley were sitting about the table in the living-room; the room hung with trophies of the chase and of competition; the room, which had been the nucleus of the Y.D. estate. There was a colored cover on the table, and the shaded oil lamp in the center sent a comfortable glow light downward and about. The minims shadows of the three people fell on the log walls, darting silently from position to position with their every movement.

Her mother arose as Zen entered the room and took her hands in a warm, tender grip.

"You're really leaving us," she said. "I'm not saying I object. I think Mr. Transley will make you a good husband. He is a man of energy, like your father. He will do well. You will not know the hardships that we knew in our early married life." Their eyes met, and there was a moment's pause.

"You will not understand for many years what this means to me, Zenith," her mother said, and turned quickly to her place at the table.

She could not remember what they had talked about after that. She had been conscious of Transley's eyes often on her, and of a certain spiritual exaltation within her. She could not remember what she had said, but she knew she had talked with unusual vivacity and charm. It was as though certain storehouses of brilliance in her being, of which she had been unaware, had been suddenly opened to her. It was as though she had been intoxicated by a very subtle wine which did not deaden, but rather quickened, all her faculties.

Afterwards, she had spent long hours among the foothills, thinking and thinking. There were times when the flame of that strange exaltation burned low, indeed; times when it seemed almost to expire. There were moments—hours—of misgivings. She could not understand the strange docility which had come over her; the unprecedented willingness to have her course shaped by another. That strange willingness came as near to frightening Zen as anything had ever done. She felt that she was being carried along in a stream; that she was making no resistance; that she had no desire to resist. She had a strange fear that some day she would need qualities of self-direction, and those qualities would refuse to arise at her command.

She did not fear Transley. She believed in him. She believed in his ability to grapple with anything that stood in his way; to thrust it aside, and press on. She respected the judgment of her father and her mother, and both of them believed in Transley. He would succeed; he would seize the opportunities this young country afforded and rise to power and influence upon them. He would be kind, he would be generous. He would make her proud of him. What more could she want?

That was just it. There were dark moments when she felt that surely there must be something more than all this. She did not know what it was—she could not analyze her thoughts or give them definite form—but in these dark moments she feared that she was being tricked, that the whole thing was a sham which she would discover when it was too late. She did not suspect her mother, or her father, or Transley, one or all, of being parties to this trick; she believed that they did not know it existed. She herself did not know it existed. But the fear was there.

After a week she admitted, much against her will, that possibly Denison Grant had something to do with it. She had not seen him since she had pressed his fingers and he had ridden away through the smoke-haze of the South Y.D. She had dutifully tried to force him from her mind. But he would not stay out of it. It was about that fact that her misgivings seemed most to center. When she would be thinking of Transley, and wondering about the future, suddenly she would discover that she was not thinking of Transley, but of Denison Grant. These discoveries shocked and humiliated her. It was an impossible position. She would throw Grant forcibly out of her mind and turn to Transley. And then, in an unguarded moment, Transley would fade from her consciousness, and she would know again that she was thinking of Grant.

At length she allowed herself the luxury of thinking frankly about Denison Grant. It was a luxury. It brought her a secret happiness which she was wholly at a loss to understand, but which was very delightful, nevertheless. She amused herself with comparing Grant with Transley. They had two points in common: their physical perfection and their fearless, self-confident manner. With these exceptions they seemed to be complete contradictions. The ambitious Transley worshipped success; the philosophical Grant despised it. That difference in attitude toward the world and its affairs was a ridge which separated the whole current of their lives. It even, in a way, shut one from the view of the other; at least it shut Grant from the view of Transley. Transley would never understand Grant, but Grant might, and probably did, understand Transley. That was why Grant was the greater of the two.

She reproached herself for such a thought; it was disloyal to admit that this stranger on the Landson ranch was a greater man than her husband-to-be. And yet honesty—or, perhaps, something deeper than honesty—compelled her to make that admission.

She ran back over the remembered incidents of the night they had spent together, marooned like shipwrecked sailors on a rock in the foothills. His attentiveness, his courtesy, his freedom from any conventional restraint, his manly respect which was so much greater than conventional restraint—all these came back to her with a poignant tenderness. She pictured Transley in his place. Transley would probably have proposed even before he had kissed her ankle. Grant had not said a word of love, or even of affection. He had talked freely of himself—at her request—but there had been nothing that might not have been said before the world. She had been safe with Grant.

After she had thought on this theme for a while Zen would acknowledge to herself that the situation was absurd and impossible. Grant had given no evidence of thinking more of her than of any other girl whom he might have met. He had been chivalrous only. She had sat up with a start at the thought that there might be another girl. . . . Or there might be no girl. Grant was an unusual character.

At any rate, the thing for her to do was to forget about him. She should have no place in her mind for any man but Transley. It was true he had stamped her, but she had accepted the situation in which she found herself. Transley was worthy of her—she had nothing to take back—she would go through with it.

On the principle that the way to drive an unwelcome thought out of the mind is to think vigorously about something else, Zen occupied herself with plans and day-dreams centering about the new home that was to be built in town. Neither her father nor Transley had as yet returned from the trip on which they had gone with a view to forming a partnership, so there had been no opportunity to discuss the plans for the future, but Zen took it for granted that Transley would build in town. He was so enthusiastic over the possibilities of that young and bustling center of population that there was no doubt he would want to throw in his lot with it. This prospect was quite pleasing to the girl; it would leave her within easy distance of her old home; it would introduce her to a type of society with which she was well acquainted, and where she could do herself justice, and it would not break up the associations of her young life. She would still be able, now and again, to take long rides through the tawny foothills; to mingle with her old friends; possibly to maintain a somewhat sisterly acquaintance with Denison Grant.

After ten days Y.D. returned—alone. He had scarcely been able to believe the developments which he had seen. It was as though the sleepy, lazy cow-town had become electrified. Y.D. had looked on for three days, wondering if he were not in some kind of a dream from which he would awaken presently among his herds in the foothills. After three days he bought a property. Before he left he sold it at a profit greater than the earnings of his first five years on the ranch. It would be indeed a stubborn confidence which could not be won by such an experience, and before leaving for the ranch Y.D. had arranged for Transley practically no open credit with his bankers, and had undertaken to send down all the horses and equipment that could be spared.

Transley had planned to return to the foothills with Y.D., but at the last moment business matters developed which required his attention. He placed a tiny package in Y.D.'s capacious palm.

"For the girl," he said. "I should deliver it myself, but you'll explain."

Y.D. fumbled the tiny package into a vest pocket. "Sure, I'll attend to that," he promised. "Wasn't much of these fancy trimmings when I settled into double harness, but lots of things has changed since then. You'll be out soon!"

"Just as soon as business will stand for it. Not a minute longer."

On his return home Y.D., after maintaining an exasperating silence until supper was finished, casually handed the package to his daughter.

"Some trinket Transley sent out," he explained. "It'll be here himself as soon as business permits."

She took the package with a glow of expectancy, started to open it, then folded the paper again and ran up to her room. Here she tempted herself for minutes before she would finally open it, whetting the appetite of anticipation to the full. . . . The gem justified her little play. It was magnificent; more beautiful and more expensive than anything her father ever had bought her.

She hesitated strangely about putting it on. To Zen it seemed that the putting on of Transley's ring would be a voluntary act symbolizing her acceptance of him. If she had been carried off her feet—swept into the position in which she found herself—that explanation would not apply to the deliberate placing of his ring upon her finger. There would be no excuse; she could never again plead that she had been the victim of Transley's pre-emptiveness. This would be deliberate; she must do it herself.

She had blamed Transley for not having told her of the business and come to perform this rite himself, as he should have done. What was one day of business, more or less? Yet Zen gathered no hint from that incident that always, with Transley, business would come first. It was symbolic—prophetic—but she did not see the sign nor understand the prophecy.

She held the ring between her fingers; slipped it off and on her little fingers; held it so the rays of the sun fell through the window upon it and danced before her eyes in all their primal colors.

"I have to put this on," she said, pursing her lips firmly, "and—get about Denison Grant!"

For a long time she thought of that and all it meant. Then she raised the jewel to her lips.

"Help me—help me—" she murmured. With a quick little impetuous motion she drew it on to the finger where it belonged. There she gazed upon it for a moment, as though fascinated by it. Then she fell upon her bed and lay motionless until long after the valley was wrapped in shadow.

The events of these days had almost driven from Zen's mind the tragedy of George Drak. When she thought of it at all it presented such a grotesque unreality—it was such an unreasonable thing—that it assumed the vague qualities of a dream. It was something unreal and very much better forgotten, and it was only by an unwilling effort at such times that she could bring herself to know that it was not unreal. It was a matter that concerned her tremendously. Sooner or later Drak's disappearance must be noted—perhaps his body would be found—and while she had little fear that anyone would associate her with the tragedy it was a most unpleasant thing to think about. Sometimes she wondered if she should not tell her father or Transley just what had happened, but she shrank from doing so as from the confession of a crime. Mostly she was able to think of other matters.

Her father brought it up in a startling way at breakfast. "Absolutely out of a blue sky he said, 'Did you know, Zen, that Drak has disappeared?' Transley told me you were interested a bit in him, or perhaps I should say he was interested in you." Zen was so overcome by this startling change in the conversation that she was unable to answer. The color went from her face and she leaned low over her plate to conceal her agitation.

"Yep," continued Y.D., with no more concern than if a steer had been lost from the herd. "Transley said to tell you Drak had disappeared, and he reckoned you wouldn't be bothered any more with him."

"Drak was nothing to me," she managed to say. "How can you think he was?"

"Now who said he was?" her father retorted. "For a young woman with the price of a herd of steers on her third finger you're sort of short this mornin'. Now I'm just wonderin' how far you can see through a board fence, Zen. Are you surprised that Drak has disappeared?"

She was entirely at a loss to understand the drift of her father's talk. He could not connect her with Drak's disappearance, or he would not approach the matter with such unconcern. That was unthinkable. Neither could Transley, or he would not have sent so brutal a message. And yet it was clear that they thought she should be interested.

Her father's question demanded an answer. "What should I care?" she ventured at length.

"I didn't ask you whether you cared. I asked you whether you was surprised."

"Drak's movements were—are nothing to me. I don't know that I have any occasion to be surprised about anything he may do."

"Well, I'm rather glad you're not, because if you don't jump to conclusions, perhaps other people won't. Not that it makes any particular difference."

"Dad," she cried in desperation, "whatever do you mean?"

"It was all plain enough to me, and plain enough to Transley," her father continued with remarkable calmness. "We seen it right from the first."

"You're talking in riddles, Y.D.," his wife remonstrated. "You're getting Zen all worked up."

"Jewelry seems to be mighty upsetting," Y.D. commented. "There was nothin' like that in our engagement, eh, Jessie? Well, to come to the point. There was a fire which burned up the valley of the South Y.D. Fires don't start themselves—usually. This one started among the Landson stacks, so it was natural enough to suspect Y.D. or some of his sympathizers. Well, it wasn't Y.D., and I reckon it wasn't Zen, and it wasn't Transley nor Linder, and every one of the gang's accounted for except Drak. Drak thought he was doin' a great piece of business when he fired the Landson hay, but when the wind turned and burned up the whole valley Drak sees where he can't play no hero part around here so he loses himself for good. I gathered from Transley that Drak had been botherin' you a little, Zen, which is why I told you."

The girl's heart was pounding violently at this explanation. It was logical, and would be accepted readily by those who knew Drak. She would not trust herself in further conversation, so she slipped away as soon as she could and spent the day riding down the river.

DELEGATION ASKS BETTER ROADS FOR FOX LAKE

A large delegation of Fox Lake residents appeared before the board of supervisors last week requesting that the county do something to improve the roads to that village. Ed White and Ed Skillen addressed the board stating that unless Fox Lake gets at least one good road it will lose prestige as a garden spot for vacationists and that it will also be a great financial blow to the business interest.

They are desirous of having the Volo-Fox Lake road improved. Supt. Charles E. Russell informed the delegation that he and the road and bridge committee are working on the project and that plans for the improvement are about ready, but that right of way will have to be obtained. There are also several other obstacles, such as finances, logical time to grade and improve it without obstructing the road, etc., to be worked out it was explained.

J. K. Dering Would Abolish District Schools

June 11, 1924

Mr. Simpson,
Sup't of Lake County Schools,
Waukegan, Illinois.

Mr. Dear Mr. Simpson:

There was a meeting at what I believe is known as the Cribbs school near my farm on Fox Lake and I understand that those present voted for a new building to be built on the present site. I was not present at the meeting and did not happen to know anything about it, or I would have been there.

I have a four hundred acre farm and living on it are several families with children, and I am anxious that not only these children but all the children in our vicinity should have the best opportunity possible for an education. I do not believe that we are giving the children the best opportunity for an education if we continue to run these district schools. I believe that all these district schools should be consolidated with the city or village schools and that a bus be maintained to take these children back and forth from school.

It stands to reason that one teacher cannot take from three to eight grades and do the children justice. By the time the child becomes interested in its lessons, the time allotted to that grade is exhausted and the teacher must take up the next grade.

I do not even know that the Lake Villa school is willing to take in these outlying districts, but if there is anything that we could do to consolidate these schools—I am assuming that you yourself are in favor of consolidation—I would like to co-operate with you to that end.

I have not been out to the farm enough this year to canvass the neighborhood to any extent, but I did have a talk with the mother of one of the families in the district; she is one of our very good neighbors, and the mother of a family of boys and girls, and has been in favor of the district school because she does not want to send her children that are just starting in to school for the first year of two to a school at any great distance. She is afraid that something might happen to the children at the school; that they might become sick and that there would be no way of bringing the children home. This particular family is living within a quarter of a mile of the school; but there are probably other families in the same district a mile or more away, so that the parents of these families would be no more handicapped with the City School than they are with the District School.

I asked the mother if she realized that she was sadly handicapping her older children—say the children from 9 to 16 years of age—in attempting to get by the first two or three years of their younger school days. I told her that I thought she could better afford to go back and forth with the children herself everyday—of course, that would not be necessary—rather than handicap the older children in this way.

I have lived in Lake County for approximately twenty-five years and during this time have tried to promote the best interests of the neighborhood. The only object I have in writing this letter to you is to call your attention and the attention of the people to this school question. It is my desire to give the children the best education possible.

What will you suggest?

Very sincerely yours,

(Signed) J. K. DERING

"Tomorrow," announced five-year-old Frank proudly to his Sunday School teacher, "is my birthday."

"Why," returned she, "it is mine, too!"

The boy's face clouded with perplexity as he said, "How did you get so much bigger'n me?"

Supervisors Drop Protest of Lake Villa

Demand of 63 residents of Lake Villa that Sheriff Ahlstrom be censured having failed to respond to a call immediately on the night that Irving Pester is alleged to have broken into the home of Anthony Leonard at that village turned down Tuesday by the board of supervisors when that body accepted the report and recommendation of the jail committee, which investigated the case last month.

The recommendation of the committee was that the sheriff be corrected to instruct the night turnkey to notify him hereafter wherever any calls come to the sheriff's office so Ahlstrom or his deputies can respond promptly. The jail committee consists of Supervisors Frank Burke, Waukegan; B. F. Naber, Antioch and Thos. Morphy, North Chicago.

The committee went into the matter thoroughly and decided that it was a case where the village officials of Lake Villa were perhaps to blame to a certain extent for the escape of the prisoner. Pester got away while the special marshal left the village jail to get the prisoner a cup of coffee. The testimony also showed that some of the village officials knew that the jail was unsafe, because Pester had escaped from it upon a previous occasion. It was also pointed out that the village president has authority to make arrests.

The special marshal testified that while he was in office he understood that it was his duty to deliver prisoners to the county jail.

The testimony showed that deputies from the sheriff's office did not start for Lake Villa until several hours after the night turnkey had received the call. He did not call the sheriff.

"For Popularizing the General Use of Electrical Energy"

IN AWARDING the Charles A. Coffin Medal for 1923 to the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, one of the principal factors determining the decision of the prize award committee was this Company's policy of extending electric service of a metropolitan character to suburban and rural communities.

The Charles A. Coffin Foundation

In 1922 Charles A. Coffin, founder and creator of the General Electric Company, retired from active leadership of that Company.

As an expression of appreciation of Mr. Coffin's life work the Charles A. Coffin Foundation was created.

This Foundation consists of a fund the income from which is to be utilized in encouraging and rewarding service in the electrical field.

A gold medal known as the Charles A. Coffin Medal is awarded annually to the electric utility operating company in the United States, which during the year has made the greatest contribution towards increasing the advantages of the use of electric light and power for the convenience of the public and the well being of the industry.

The Company receiving the Charles A. Coffin Medal receives also $1,000 for its employees benefit or similar fund.

This consistent program of making electric service more useful to a constantly increasing number of homes and industries is all important in popularizing the general use of electrical energy.

Prior to the extension of this Company's transmission lines to the smaller communities, the residents were given only four or five hours' daily service and that frequently uncertain.

With the coming of this Company, electric service was made promptly available any hour of the day or night.

This progressive policy of bringing modern efficient electric service to an ever widening circle of communities is of especial interest to the more than 21,400 stockholder-owners of this Company, for it evidences the manner in which their Company is growing side by side with the territory it serves.

The Hoosier Schoolmaster Here Sunday

"The Hoosier Schoolmaster" will be shown at the Crystal theater on Sunday.

The Hoosier country of Indiana, ten years before the Civil War, is harassed by continual robberies but there is no clue as to who the criminals are.

Ralph Hartsook accepts a position as schoolmaster of the Flat Creek District and begins his "boarding around" in the Means home. The family consists of Old James Means, Old "Mis" Means, their sons, Bill and Bud, and their daughter, Mirandy. Hannah Thompson, an orphan, "bound out" according to the customs of the time, does the household chores.

Ralph and Bud become pals and Miss Means endeavors to make a match between the schoolmaster and her silly daughter. Ralph refuses to be ensnared, even though her father does own half of the district. He falls in love with Hannah Thompson, who has no friends except her young brother "Shocky", who lives with John Pearson, an old veteran.

The great event of the season is the annual spelling bee. Hannah wins the match, after "spelling down" the schoolmaster. That night, Ralph, unable to sleep, walks in the direction of the Means house, and sees some men on horseback galloping by, among whom is Dr. Small.

The next morning Dutchy Snyder announces that he has been robbed of everything. Dr. Small and Pete Jones, in order to avert suspicion, make the mob believe that Pearson is the thief. Shocky Thompson warns Ralph and Bud that the mob is going to lynch Pearson. Jones, aware that Shocky has told, beats him with a whip but is stopped by Ralph and Bud. Bud gives Jones a sound thrashing. Ralph gets Pearson and Shocky away and faces the mob single handed. He gets hold of a gun and the mob is forced to retreat.

The next day Hannah warns Ralph that the mob is after him for aiding Pearson. Ralph rushes to Squire Hawkins, the local justice, for protection. Bud saves him from being lynched. At the trial, the schoolmaster is his own attorney. Bud makes Walter Johnson, assistant to Dr. Small, and a member of the gang of robbers, confess that the doctor and the Jones are leaders of the gang. Ralph is proclaimed innocent. The squire tells Hannah that she should have been freed two years ago, as the laws of Indiana do not permit a girl to be "bound out" after reaching the age of eighteen.

Ralph is proud to proclaim Hannah as his betrothed before the whole community.

ANOTHER EX-BLACKSMITH

It had been terribly hot about the camp, and the battery cook was suddenly struck with a bright idea for the welfare of humanity. He filled a G. I. can with ice water and was dumping in tea leaves when the mess sergeant strolled up.

"Watcher makin' there?" demanded the latter.

"Iced tea."

"You can't make iced tea that way. Instepd. You gotta boll it."

"Boll it?" The cook became scornful. "Noll it?" Why, you poor old can, if I balled it, it would melt the ice."

Of Interest to Antioch Farmers

Timely topics and local news concerning stockmen, poultrymen, gardeners and dairymen. Edited by C. L. KUTIL

GREEN APHIS PREVALENT

As the editor of this column travels through the country, he notices an unusual large number of Green Aphids attacking the current and rose bushes. They have also been found on peach trees. Indications are that they will attack the potato crop a little later. As soon as you notice a shriveling and discoloration of the leaves, look on the underside of the leaves and invariably you will find large numbers of green legs or aphids.

These are sucking insects and Paris Green and Lead Arsenate can not be used with success. To destroy these insects use "Black Leaf Forty" as directed on the labels. These can be obtained in drug stores. Always apply to the under side of the leaves and use plenty of pressure in the sprayer. Kerosene emulsion can also be used.

THE PRESENT NEED FOR VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE

The question of continuing or starting a department of vocational agriculture in the high school is now confronting many boards of education in Illinois. Agricultural conditions are poor and the profits of the farm are not attracting many boys to it as a life job. This condition has already affected the enrollment in the College of Agriculture at the University where the number of students has decreased about fifty per cent in the last few years. In some cases it is difficult to secure fair enrollment in our vocational departments because of the lack of interest by the farm boys and in some cases by the farmers themselves. The boards of education are asking the question, "Why teach boys how to farm when farming doesn't offer fair returns?"

We will admit that farming is not a prosperous business at the present time, but we do believe that conditions will improve. In spite of these conditions the majority of the farm boys are staying on the farm after finishing high school work or are dropping out of school to farm before finishing their high school work. A very small percent of them are going to college. The large group of them find themselves on the farm with the prospect of farming as a life job. The situation which confronts us then is much different from that confronting the colleges of agriculture. The majority of the farm boys in high school are going to farm even when prices are low. Our job then is more essential under these conditions than when prices are high and when anyone can make a living on the farm. Only those with skill, information and ability in farming can survive.

FARMER'S TURN AT HAND

Signs multiply that the end is nearly here of conditions which for several years have favored other industries to the disadvantage of agriculture. Prices of what farmers buy are falling—values of what they sell seem to have hit bottom, and already have a steeper upward tendency.

Nature too is helping. Winter wheat and rye may be below normal in America and Europe. Reduced acreage in spring plantings is indicated on both sides of the Atlantic.

Commodities have fallen in value from an average of 247 four years ago to 145, compared to 100 in 1913. Now taxes must and shall come down likewise, whereas most of us are taxed far more heavily than during the boom four years ago.

Labor over-reached until reaction has come even in building. Unemployment increases in certain trades, labor is in more supply for farming. Lumber, iron and other materials are cheaper and manufactured goods lower. Money is easy, stocks and bonds low, financial market dull.

Elections in England, Germany, France, show that those peoples are tired of bureaucrats who feast upon wars and whose selfish policies ever call for more and more taxes. "The billions squandered upon militarism since Armistice would have gone far to have restored normal conditions," vote the plain people of Europe. They want the Dawes plan, reparations, peace, work—which mean more demand for crops.

The basis is solid for better times for farmers, therefore for other people also. Readjustment is well along. Mark my words, Agriculture only needs a square deal, to go forward soundly. The best is yet to be!

Discuss Repairs on Poor Farm Buildings

Members of the county poor farm committee last week submitted to the supervisors a proposition for the replacing of the dilapidated buildings at the poor farm, Libertyville, by new and larger quarters. The recommendation was made that it would be wise to repair the old buildings as it would cost too much to put them into condition.

It was pointed out that if new buildings are constructed the chronic patients at the county hospital could be cared for at the poor farm at a big saving in cost to the county. The committee which made the recommendations consists of B. C. Thompson, chairman; Chas. Harbaugh and C. M. Wilcox.

The board named the building and grounds committee to meet with the poor farm committee to investigate the advisability of going ahead with the building project and to report back their findings at the September meeting.

Supervisor A. G. Maether stated that he believed the county could build more cheaply next year, and it was explained that if the board decides to rebuild the work probably could not be started until then, anyway.

The report of the poor committee, showing the cost of keeping the poor in various townships of the county for the past three months, was as follows:

Benton	$1392.00
Newport	76.53
Lake Villa	135.97
Antioch	127.85
Avon	325.01
Grant	125.00
Libertyville	71.47
Fremont	20.00

Miss Martha Tessman, 19 years old of 215 Liberty street, Libertyville, died Sunday morning at 10 o'clock at the Victory Memorial hospital as the result of injuries received Thursday night when she was run down by an automobile owned and driven by Michael Davis, 45 years old, 538 Cummings avenue, Libertyville. Miss Tessman lapsed into unconsciousness Saturday afternoon and died without regaining her senses. Davis was arrested Saturday night on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon after it developed that his victim's condition had taken a sudden and unexpected turn for the worse. He was released in bonds of $3,000.

COUNTY SEEKING REFUND OF HUGE SUM IN BACK TAXES

The county board on last Tuesday took preliminary steps to start legal action against a large number of foreign insurance companies for the collection of thousands of dollars worth of back taxes covering a period of 25 years. It is estimated that those companies owe the county perhaps $50,000 or $100,000 or more.

The supreme court recently decided a case in favor of municipalities and counties, and it is upon this that the collections are sought. Waukegan already has started legal action against the alleged delinquent companies.

It is planned to place the account in the hands of a tax expert named Gilbert in Chicago, who will fight the case of the county and Waukegan, as well as other Lake county towns on a percentage basis of perhaps 25 per cent.

The board referred the matter to the finance committee.

News Notes Taken From Other Papers

The last cement on the present contract on the McHenry-Volo road was poured last week, which means that same will be open to travel no later than July 1, and possibly a trifle before that time.

Captain Thomas E. Kennedy, in charge of the Waukegan police traffic department painted white lines on street in the downtown district designating the manner motorists must park cars last week.

John Wojton, John Stanzak and John Wasienaski, the "three Johns" who were raided by Sheriff Ed Ahlstrom last Saturday and Sunday night, appeared before Justice Harry Hoyt and paid the fines assessed against them for having violated the prohibition laws. Wojton, North Chicago's "Bootlegger do luxe" paid a fine of $400 as did John Stanzak while John Wasienaski, the less active of the violators, was fined $300.

Two of the signs which are to be erected by the Grayslake C. C. have been completed and will be placed in the near future. One will be erected at Westernfield corner, on the centinel road, with directions for reaching villages north of Grayslake, and the other will be placed at the northwest edge of town and will direct tourists to places south, east and west of this village. The object of these signs is to bring tourists into Grayslake instead of passing on the outskirts of the village.

The other two signs will be reserved temporarily, and should the tourist park become a reality, will be used to bring motorists to this camp. After two years of litigation it was believed that the public had received the final word on what's what on Watts Island but the Watts have decided to find out what the United States Supreme court is going to do. The Watts brothers, who reside at Fox Lake, have notified their attorney, Judge D. T. Smiley, of Woodstock to take an appeal from the Illinois Supreme Court, which ruled against them, holding in favor of Arthur Wilkinson, of Fox Lake and others, concerning title to 17 acres of land at the extreme northeast corner of Pistakee Lake. The state supreme court upheld the action of the circuit court of Lake county, giving the decision on the day Atty. Homer Cooke, 93, who started the suit a third of a century ago, died. The title of the land involves the legality of acts of congress, patents signed by presidents and other officers of the United States.

Republicans Place Faith in Coolidge-Dawes

The outstanding feature of the eighteenth National Convention of the Republican party, which has just concluded its labors here, was the voicing by the delegates of their faith in Calvin Coolidge. The President and his running mate, Chas. G. Dawes, another striking example of sterling American manhood, go before the voters on a platform which should win for the Republican ticket the voters of many Democrats. The platform is free from political banalities. It is an honest, straightforward statement of the things for which the Republican party stands.

A brief summary of the platform shows that the President and his party are pledged to governmental economy; to tax reforms that will further reduce the burden of taxation; that the strictest scrutiny will be made so that the integrity of the Budget System may be preserved. It declares that the Republican administration slashed $200,000,000 from the cost of government and eliminated 50,000 employees from the payrolls; that the Administration lifted the tax burden some $1,250,000,000 per annum, at the same time reducing the public debt by over $2,500,000.

The platform refers to the fact that in 1920, when the Republicans took office, that there were about three million men out of work in the country and that today there is little if any unemployment. The party is pledged to give to the farmer all the necessary government assistance in organizing and establishing a system for the co-operative marketing of agricultural products. It promises to aid and simplify as well as the cheapening of our marketing and distributing machinery. It promises departmental help in diversified farming and, if necessary, direct financial aid during the transition period of diversification. There is also a pledge to continue and vigorous efforts to strengthen and broaden the export markets.

In the matter of railroad rates, there is a declaration for a revision with a view to reduce the rates on agricultural products. Aid for good highways is urged. The new immigration law is endorsed. In the matter of prohibition, there is a declaration in favor of law enforcement. There is also a declaration that guilt is personal and a pledge to publish every individual found guilty of fraud against the Government.

There is a declaration to extend every aid, financial and otherwise, to the disabled veterans of the late war. There is a provision asking that the President be given power, in time of war, to draft every citizen of the United States, so that capital, labor and, in fact, every resource of the Nation will do its part, share and share alike. This would mean elimination of the profiteer and the slacker during the periods of national strife. The World Court plan is endorsed, but there is a renewed announcement that the United States will have no participation in the League of Nations.

The Republican party, through the Temporary Chairman, called attention to the fact that during the Republican Administration taxes have been reduced; peace restored with Germany; the suffrage amendment ratified; millions of dollars have been spent on the disabled soldiers; the tariff has been revised so as to produce more revenue and lessen taxes; that there is a lack of unemployment that good wages obtain; that more legislation has been enacted for the benefit of the farmer than during any session of Congress for 50 years (even William Jennings Bryan has publicly admitted this fact); that peace in Europe has been aided by the Dawes Commission; that the Budget System, a Republican measure, in the first year of its being, resulted in the reduction of $600,000,000 from the estimates submitted; that the Republican Party does not stand for the cancellation of war debts owed to us by foreign countries and for which our people paid; that a packing bill to protect the stock raisers was passed; that a co-operative marketing act was passed.

The dominant note of the entire convention proceedings was as Mr. Burton voiced it, "the people—and all of the people—have confidence in Calvin Coolidge."

Johnny came back from the circus very much excited. "Oh mama," he cried, as soon as he got in the house, "Katie spilled some peanuts, and what do you think the elephant did? He picked 'em all up with his vacuum cleaner."

"Mamma," complained little Elsie, "I don't feel very well."

"That's too bad, dear," said mother sympathetically. "Where do you feel worse?"

"In school, mamma."

Chindblom Tells How to Get Bonus

According to Congressman Carl R. Chindblom of the Tenth district in which he makes reference to the adjusted compensation for ex-service men in the belief that many Lake county world war veterans will be making inquiries with regard to the law recently enacted by Congress, a letter from the Adjutant General of the Army is made public in which he sets out the necessary and proper procedure.

For the benefit of local ex-service men the letter from the adjutant general is published in full as follows:

It is not necessary to write to the War Department, the Navy Department, or the United States Veterans' Bureau, for blank forms of application for adjusted compensation, or for any information concerning it. Full information with regard thereto will be published in the public press and detailed information will be contained in the circular that will accompany each application. When the blank forms of application and the circulars shall have been printed they will be immediately distributed throughout the country to the post offices, to the posts or the American Legion and other veteran organizations, to the Army and Navy and Navy posts and stations, for immediate delivery to all persons who desire to apply for the adjusted compensation. It is expected that copies of application and circulars of instructions will be available for distribution on or before June 30, 1924.

Cash payment of the adjusted compensation to those entitled to $50 or less will not be made prior to March 1, 1925. The adjusted service certificates will bear date January 1, 1925, or later, but under the law, no loan can be made on the adjusted service certificates until two years after the date of such certificates.

The War Department, Navy Department, and the United States Veterans' Bureau, have made extensive preparations to handle promptly all claims for the adjusted compensation. This great work will require the undivided attention of every employee, and it will be impossible to answer individual inquiries concerning the matter. Such inquiries would not only be useless, but to answer them would delay action on the claims.

Claimants will aid materially if they will fill up the blank forms of application to the best of their ability in accordance with their own knowledge or recollection of the facts, and refrain from writing to the War Department, Navy Department, or the United States Veterans' Bureau, concerning adjusted compensation.

While in the east Mr. Ihlenfeldt will attend the N. E. Teachers' convention, credits for this will be used for those applicable to the Smith-Hughes agricultural requirements. In connection with the Smith-Hughes work Mr. Ihlenfeldt is to attend a week's institute at Oshkosh in August.

Guests of Violet Beck over the week end were Mathilda and Mildred Richards, May Osher, Mayme Witt, and Erna Enland of Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. P. Meyers and children of Kenosha also spent Sunday at the Beck home.

Miss Stallman, principal of the Wilmot grades left for her home at Milwaukee the first of the week. Miss Stallman has a position in a school near Milwaukee for next year.

About thirty of the U. F. H. school students and faculty attended the senior class picnic at Lake Geneva last Friday. Principal Ihlenfeldt was severely injured when hit by a baseball that accidentally flew out of the hands of Cyril Dalton, who had been up to bat in a game of work up. The ball struck Mr. Ihlenfeldt just below the nose, cutting a bad gash and loosening several teeth. He was knocked unconscious. A doctor at Lake Geneva was called at once and first aid remedies applied, but he did not regain consciousness until the next morning. Dr. Becker took charge of the case here and Mr. Ihlenfeldt has recovered nicely.

The Lake Geneva baseball team will play the Legion club at Wilmot next Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Kruckman and Dale spent Monday in Kenosha.

The American legion, Fred Semrau Post 361 entertained the Kenosha Legionnaires, including the post band.

The band gave a concert of an hour or so at the Wendman hall. The auxiliary had prepared an appetizing lunch in the dining room of the hall and the legion men were invited. Post Commander Lowellyn Raymond gave a short address of welcome and introduced Sheriff-elect Wm. Frazier as toastmaster of the evening. Impromptu talks from members of both posts were greatly enjoyed. The visit of the Kenosha post is becoming an annual affair and is greatly enjoyed by the villagers as well as the legionaires.

"Why do you turn out for every road hog that comes along?" said the missis, rather crossly. "The right of way is ours, isn't it?"

"Oh, undoubtedly!" answered he, quite calmly. "As for turning out, the reason is plainly suggested in this epitaph which appeared in a newspaper recently:

"Here lies the body of Wm. Jay. Who died maintaining his right of way;

He was right, dead right, as he sped along, But he's just as dead as if he'd been wrong."

FITTING BANKERS FOR THEIR WORK

Financial conditions are rapidly increasing the demand for trained men and women. This demand is met by the American Institute of Banking, the educational section of the American Bankers Association, organized in 1900. It was originally an association of clerks, but since 1908 its membership has included bank directors, officers and clerks. From a few hundred the institute's membership has grown steadily to a figure in excess of fifty-two thousand. It is not conducted for profit. It has chapters in more than one hundred and fifty of the country's largest cities. Its class enrollment of nearly thirty thousand is greater than the combined registration of Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Cornell, the University of Chicago and the naval and military academies at Annapolis and West Point. It offers instruction in banking practice, economics, commercial law, negotiable instruments, credits, accounting, bonds and investments, public speaking, and kindred subjects designed to fit the banker for his work and enable him to fill well his place in his community. Clarence R. Chaney, President American Institute of Banking.

PROTEST LUXURIES FOR COUNTY POOR

Strawberries, sponge cake, powdered sugar, and $8 pumps on the list of purchases by the poor of Lake county Wednesday caused a storm among the supervisors that would compare favorably with the G. O. P. convention. Following a hot discussion in which practically all of the supervisors jumped to their feet to express their approval or denunciation, the board voted by 17 to 14 to require the names of all persons and the amount of aid received from the county to be published, as a remedy for the rapidly increasing cost of keeping the poor. Supervisor W. D. Bietsch of Highland Park, who started it all, declared that he believed it would cause the unworthy to refrain from applying, and explained that it was not a plan to "humiliate" the worthy ones. He stated he would gladly take $100 out of his own pocket any time to help the worthy poor.

The discussion followed the presentation of a bill for $14,000 for caring for the poor of the wealthy North Shore townships during the quarter. The cost of the poor of the remainder of the county was only $2,400.

All told of the $40,000 appropriated for last year, this entire amount was expended in the North Shore towns, while the balance of the county expenditure was about $8,000.00.

Some of the supervisors felt that it should be left to the discussion of the supervisors as to whether applicants for aid are worthy, and as to the amount of aid they are to receive.

Supervisor A. W. Versee, of Highland Park, declared that he did not believe the worthy would object to having their names published. He said that the reason for the mounting cost of keeping the poor is due largely to the fact that "politics" enters into the distribution of the funds for food, fuel and clothing.
